Here in Cambodia, 70 large garment factories are closing, and thousands are losing their jobs. Forty-six aid organizations (NGOs) have closed their operations, and many others are cutting back. The largest charity hospital in the country announced they had stopped doing surgery because their funds had dried up.

More than ever before, we need you to partner with us to continue feeding 1200 malnourished children every day, treat 120 patients daily on the Ship of Life, offer English Bible studies to scores of university students, send 400 children back to school, and share the love of God with this nation of 14 million people.

To all who have helped in the past, the forgotten people of Cambodia are grateful. To those of you who are able to partner with us now, we need your help.

By Marie-Claire McDonough

The book clubs increased from 2 to 11 locations. School directors are raving about the amazing progress that our “Back to School children” are making in reading and writing and give credit to the book club. More school directors are asking to have book clubs in their schools.

The book club does require a lot of follow up. Each child is tested on the book he or she reads and earns points toward a toy, a book, or some food for their family, or they can save toward the grand prize, a bicycle. This will help them to carry their younger siblings to school. (Many of them have been saving for the bike!)

Nen, our coordinator (pictured with Marie-Claire) who works with the schools and families, has helped us to select the poorest of the poor and work closely with their families to keep the kids in school. What was thought to be impossible and unimaginable became accessible to poor families. They are now thrilled to see their children coming back from school and showing them how they can write their name, count, and read aloud beautiful stories, which include the precious Word of God.

You are bringing hope, education, and the Word of God to these children and their families, and without you this never could have happened.

The Back to School Book Club is Growing

By Marie-Claire McDonough

---

Nen, the Book Club coordinator, who works with the school families to keep the kids in school, is pictured here with Marie-Claire McDonough.
Water from the Well

By Troy and Tabitha Snowbarger

The well at Dombol Mien Lek primary school has been in operation for almost a year, and we are excited that this school and community finally have a source of fresh, clean water. Many of the children who attend this school are in the Back to School program. We had much help with design of the well and with community well-maintenance training by a local Cambodian organization that works in water and sanitation. You made it happen, and without you, these people would still be drinking from a filthy fish pond.

A Joyous Return to Phnom Penh

Minia has been a Christian for almost five years and has been a wonderful example to her entire family. She has raised her two younger sisters, working at two and three jobs to support and send them to school while returning to high school herself to get her diploma so she could go to college. She has worked for years to influence and teach her sisters and when we returned to Phnom Penh, she called me to say that one of them wanted me to baptize her into Christ. On that same day three other English Bible students obeyed the gospel as well.

New Ultrasound Machine Arrives

Thanks to the generous gift from Healing Hands International, the Ship of Life now has an ultrasound machine, and our Dr. Samantha is training to make effective use of the new equipment. HHI provided half of $20,000 price tag, and you provided the balance. This equipment will enable us to better diagnose serious problems that we can then either treat or refer to one of several charity referral hospitals in Phnom Penh. In the last month we have been able to refer children to the National Pediatric Hospital, Konto Bopha, a Swiss children's hospital, King Sihanouke Hope Hospital, and the Chaine de l'espoir French pediatric heart hospital for treatment that we cannot offer on the ship. This makes it possible for us to identify serious problems way out in the provinces and help people get care they otherwise are unaware of or cannot access themselves. We often must pay their bus transportation and give them money to eat on while they are in the city because they are the very poorest of the poor.

Myanmar Cyclone Relief Continues a Year Later

Nine villages are still able to exist because of your ongoing assistance. Because they are unable to grow crops on the saltwater-soaked land, we are continuing to help them with rice and have responded to their plea for thatch to cover their bamboo houses. Encouraging them to become more independent, we responded to their request for fishing boats and nets and delivered 50 20-foot prams to some of the neediest, which will allow them to fish for their food and sell the excess. Churches are being planted in this area as a result, and seminars are planned for September and April to better equip the leaders. Your partnership made all this possible.

A Joyous Return to Phnom Penh

Minia has been a Christian for almost five years and has been a wonderful example to her entire family. She has raised her two younger sisters, working at two and three jobs to support and send them to school while returning to high school herself to get her diploma so she could go to college. She has worked for years to influence and teach her sisters and when we returned to Phnom Penh, she called me to say that one of them wanted me to baptize her into Christ. On that same day three other English Bible students obeyed the gospel as well.

Solid boats are essential for fishing and commerce. PIP supports the continual process of boat building and repair.

School children at the well waiting for fresh water to be drawn for them to drink.

Bill McDonough baptizing on his return to Phnom Penh.

Myanmar Cyclone Relief Continues a Year Later

Nine villages are still able to exist because of your ongoing assistance. Because they are unable to grow crops on the saltwater-soaked land, we are continuing to help them with rice and have responded to their plea for thatch to cover their bamboo houses. Encouraging them to become more independent, we responded to their request for fishing boats and nets and delivered 50 20-foot prams to some of the neediest, which will allow them to fish for their food and sell the excess. Churches are being planted in this area as a result, and seminars are planned for September and April to better equip the leaders. Your partnership made all this possible.

A Joyous Return to Phnom Penh

Minia has been a Christian for almost five years and has been a wonderful example to her entire family. She has raised her two younger sisters, working at two and three jobs to support and send them to school while returning to high school herself to get her diploma so she could go to college. She has worked for years to influence and teach her sisters and when we returned to Phnom Penh, she called me to say that one of them wanted me to baptize her into Christ. On that same day three other English Bible students obeyed the gospel as well.

Solid boats are essential for fishing and commerce. PIP supports the continual process of boat building and repair.

School children at the well waiting for fresh water to be drawn for them to drink.

Bill McDonough baptizing on his return to Phnom Penh.

Myanmar Cyclone Relief Continues a Year Later

Nine villages are still able to exist because of your ongoing assistance. Because they are unable to grow crops on the saltwater-soaked land, we are continuing to help them with rice and have responded to their plea for thatch to cover their bamboo houses. Encouraging them to become more independent, we responded to their request for fishing boats and nets and delivered 50 20-foot prams to some of the neediest, which will allow them to fish for their food and sell the excess. Churches are being planted in this area as a result, and seminars are planned for September and April to better equip the leaders. Your partnership made all this possible.

A Joyous Return to Phnom Penh

Minia has been a Christian for almost five years and has been a wonderful example to her entire family. She has raised her two younger sisters, working at two and three jobs to support and send them to school while returning to high school herself to get her diploma so she could go to college. She has worked for years to influence and teach her sisters and when we returned to Phnom Penh, she called me to say that one of them wanted me to baptize her into Christ. On that same day three other English Bible students obeyed the gospel as well.

Solid boats are essential for fishing and commerce. PIP supports the continual process of boat building and repair.

School children at the well waiting for fresh water to be drawn for them to drink.

Bill McDonough baptizing on his return to Phnom Penh.
New Ultrasound Machine Arrives

Thanks to the generous gift from Healing Hands International, the Ship of Life now has an ultrasound machine, and our Dr. Samantha is training to make effective use of the new equipment. HHI provided half of the $20,000 price tag, and you provided the balance.

This equipment will enable us to better diagnose serious problems that we can then either treat or refer to one of several charity referral hospitals in Phnom Penh. In the last month we have been able to refer children to the National Pediatric Hospital, Konto Bopha, a Swiss children’s hospital, King Sihanouk Hope Hospital, and the Chaine de l’espoir French pediatric heart hospital for treatment that we cannot offer on the ship. This makes it possible for us to identify serious problems way out in the provinces and help people get care they otherwise are unaware of or cannot access themselves.

We often must pay their bus transportation and give them money to eat on while they are in the city because they are the very poorest of the poor.

---

Myanmar Cyclone Relief Continues a Year Later

Nine villages are still able to exist because of your ongoing assistance. Because they are unable to grow crops on the saltwater-soaked land, we are continuing to help them with rice and have responded to their plea for thatch to cover their bamboo houses.

Encouraging them to become more independent, we responded to their request for fishing boats and nets and delivered 50 20-foot prams to some of the neediest, which will allow them to fish for their food and sell the excess.

Churches are being planted in this area as a result, and seminars are planned for September and April to better equip the leaders. Your partnership made all this possible.

---

A Joyous Return to Phnom Penh

Minea has been a Christian for almost five years and has been a wonderful example to her entire family. She has raised her two younger sisters, working at two and three jobs to support and send them to school while returning to high school herself to get her diploma so she could go to college. She has worked for years to influence and teach her sisters and when we returned to Phnom Penh, she called me to say that one of them wanted me to baptize her into Christ. On that same day three other English Bible students obeyed the gospel as well.

Water from the Well

_By Troy and Tabitha Snowbarger_

The well at Dombol Mien Lek primary school has been in operation for almost a year, and we are excited that this school and community finally have a source of fresh, clean water. Many of the children who attend this school are in the Back to School program. We had much help with design of the well and with community well-maintenance training by a local Cambodian organization that works in water and sanitation. You made it happen, and without you, these people would still be drinking from a filthy fish pond.

---

Partners in Progress

PIP supports the continual process of boat building and repair.

---

Villagers stack and prepare to distribute the huge bags of rice that were delivered.

---

Solid boats are essential for fishing and commerce.

Solid boats are essential for fishing and commerce.

---

New nets are essential to a fishing economy, rendered more important recently because of reduced agricultural production.

---

Partners in Progress will deliver these new boats to the villages.

---

Bill McDonough baptizing on his return to Phnom Penh.

---

Dr. Samantha and Bill McDonough get acquainted with the new ultrasound machine with the help of a company technician.

---

Villagers unload newly delivered thatch, which is still used as roofing in this part of the world.

---

School children at the well waiting for fresh water to be drawn for them to drink.

---

A Joyous Return to Phnom Penh

Minea has been a Christian for almost five years and has been a wonderful example to her entire family. She has raised her two younger sisters, working at two and three jobs to support and send them to school while returning to high school herself to get her diploma so she could go to college. She has worked for years to influence and teach her sisters and when we returned to Phnom Penh, she called me to say that one of them wanted me to baptize her into Christ. On that same day three other English Bible students obeyed the gospel as well.

---

Partners in Progress

Partners in Progress

---

The well at Dombol Mien Lek primary school has been in operation for almost a year, and we are excited that this school and community finally have a source of fresh, clean water.

---

Many of the children who attend this school are in the Back to School program. We had much help with design of the well and with community well-maintenance training by a local Cambodian organization that works in water and sanitation.

---

You made it happen, and without you, these people would still be drinking from a filthy fish pond.

---

We often must pay their bus transportation and give them money to eat on while they are in the city because they are the very poorest of the poor.

---

Dr. Samantha and Bill McDonough get acquainted with the new ultrasound machine with the help of a company technician.

---

Villagers stack and prepare to distribute the huge bags of rice that were delivered.

---

Solid boats are essential for fishing and commerce.

---

New nets are essential to a fishing economy, rendered more important recently because of reduced agricultural production.

---

Partners in Progress will deliver these new boats to the villages.
Here in Cambodia, 70 large garment factories are closing, and thousands are losing their jobs. Forty-six aid organizations (NGOs) have closed their operations, and many others are cutting back. The largest charity hospital in the country announced they had stopped doing surgery because their funds had dried up.

More than ever before, we need you to partner with us to continue feeding 1200 malnourished children every day, treat 120 patients daily on the Ship of Life, offer English Bible studies to scores of university students, send 400 children back to school, and share the love of God with this nation of 14 million people.

To all who have helped in the past, the forgotten people of Cambodia are grateful. To those of you who are able to partner with us now, we need your help.

A Message from the Director

The book clubs increased from 2 to 11 locations. School directors are raving about the amazing progress that our “Back to School children” are making in reading and writing and give credit to the book club. More school directors are asking to have book clubs in their schools.

The book club does require a lot of follow up. Each child is tested on the book he or she reads and earns points toward a toy, a book, or some food for their family, or they can save toward the grand prize, a bicycle. This will help them to carry their younger siblings to school. (Many of them have been saving for the bike!)

Nen, our coordinator (pictured with Marie-Claire) who works with the schools and families, has helped us to select the poorest of the poor and work closely with their families to keep the kids in school. What was thought to be impossible and unimaginable became accessible to poor families. They are now thrilled to see their children coming back from school and showing them how they can write their name, count, and read aloud beautiful stories, which include the precious Word of God.

You are bringing hope, education, and the Word of God to these children and their families, and without you this never could have happened.